Martin Luther was not just a pastor and a great scholar, he was also a poet and composer who wrote many hymns. Some of them you can still find in our present day hymn-book.

Today’s lessons:

- Jeremiah 31:31-34 God promises his people a New Covenant, this time not giving the Law (= the rules of the covenant) written in stone like he did with Moses, but God will put his Law into the hearts and the minds of his people.
- Psalms 46 Even when everything in our life looks like chaos and nobody seems to be on our side, God will be there for us.
- Romans 3:19-28 The Apostle Paul explains that we will not be justified in God’s eyes by fulfilling the Law – because we always fail to do so – but will be justified by God’s own grace.
- John 8:31-36 Jesus explains to his listeners that only if sin has no longer power over them they will be really free.

What Luther found in Romans 3

Studying Paul's Letter to the Romans, Martin Luther had his great insight that started the Reformation.

And if you study this word-search, you'll find it, too, (in the unused letters...).
