Today's lessons:

Deuteronomy 18:15-20 Shortly before his death Moses announces to the Israelites there will be another prophet after himself.

Psalm 111 This psalm gives thanks to God for his grace and compassion. He keeps his promises and cares for his people.

1 Corinthians 8:1-13 The Corinthians have asked the Apostle Paul if they as Christians can eat meat from animals that have been sacrificed to pagan gods. Paul answers that, generally speaking, for Christians other gods don't exist. But as long as some Christians are afraid of eating the meat, the others should for their sake also stay away from it.

Mark 1:21-28 Jesus teaches at the synagogue in Capernaum. Everybody notices that unlike the scribes Jesus speaks with power. This power also shows in Jesus freeing a man from an unclean spirit.
